

Backing Indigenous Leaders Where Ending the Climate Crisis and Decolonization Meet

Colonization and capitalism have disconnected us from each other, our basic human needs, and the land. There is so much to learn from Indigenous cultures, especially around our relationships — with nature, ourselves, and each other. In this workshop we will share ways we can use engaged listening to back Indigenous leaders and heal ourselves from the damaging effects of colonization.

Tuesday, September 19, 1:30 pm – 3:00 pm

optional listening circle follows

Tools for Climate Organizing

Sustaining All Life (SAL) and United to End Racism (UER) are international grassroots organizations working to end the climate emergency within the context of ending all divisions among people. As part of New York City Climate Week, SAL/UER will present many interactive workshops that address barriers to resolving the climate emergency. Our events will also show participants how to exchange effective listening to free themselves from the emotional harm resulting from oppression and other hurtful experiences—harm that can interfere with thinking about and responding effectively to the climate crisis.
