

The Legacy of Colonization and Racism on Africa

Colonialism and racism have devastated the way of life of many Africans, leaving them extremely vulnerable to the effects of climate change. Because their land has been taken away, many people are also facing violence, civil war, and genocide. Yet it is possible to heal from this trauma and strengthen our resolve to combat and end the emergency. In this workshop, Africans will share how they have experienced racism and colonialism, as well as their commitment, courage, and hope.

Tools for Climate Organizing

Sustaining All Life (SAL) and United to End Racism (UER) are international grassroots organizations working to end the climate emergency within the context of ending all divisions among people. As part of New York City Climate Week, SAL/UER will present many interactive workshops that address barriers to resolving the climate emergency. Our events will also show participants how to exchange effective listening to free themselves from the emotional harm resulting from oppression and other hurtful experiences—harm that can interfere with thinking about and responding effectively to the climate crisis.
